

The Senate Committee on Military Affairs and Secretary of War Newton Diehl Baker, during one of the hearings on the Government's war plans. Left to Right—Senators Duncan U. Fletcher, Harry S. New, John W. Weeks, J. C. W. Beckham, James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Francis E. Warren, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, George E. Chamberlain, chairman; Secretary Baker and Senator Kenneth D. McKellar. Standing—Senators James A. Reed and William F. Kirby.

Copyright, Harris & Ewing, from Paul Thompson.

A happy moment for the convalescents at United States Base Hospital No. 6, at X—, in France. Music, smokes and the care of the nurse unite to bring cheer. The men surely look well cared for.

Copyright, Committee on Public Information.

A pathetic yet inspiring scene. The small boy whose father has been killed at the front, is being decorated by Gen. Marini, military commander of Rome, for his father's bravery.

Copyright, Press Illustrating Service.

Secretary Daniels of the Navy before the House Committee on Naval Affairs. Left to Right—Commander Herbert Sparrow, aid to the Secretary; Congressmen William B. Oliver, Carl Vinson, C. W. McArthur, T. S. Butler, Secretary Daniels, L. P. Padgett, chairman; F. C. Hicks of New York, S. E. Mudd, F. A. Britten, W. J. Browning of New Jersey, W. Kettner and A. B. Littlepage.

Copyright, Chinedinst Studio.

This remarkable photograph was taken by a German aviator during the battle of Cambrai, when the British tanks were going over the top. Four of the land monsters can be seen plainly.

British Official Photo.

The happiest moment in the life of a soldier on active service is when letters from home arrive. Here Y. M. C. A. workers are seen distributing mail to Pershing's men in France. Notice the delighted expression on the faces of the lucky ones.

Copyright, Committee on Public Information.